

Wiltshire Police engage Bramble.cc to help with its MOPI strategy....

Wiltshire Police chooses Bramble.cc to review its information assets and assist in the development of a strategy for managing information in accordance to the code of practice on the Managing of Police Information (MoPI). MoPI and supporting guidelines set out by the Home Office following the Bichard Inquiry. Wiltshire Police are also trying to bring IM policy together across the whole organization.

The key benefits of adopting an IM strategy across the organisation will include:

- 1 reduced costs by eliminating duplication;
- 2 improved employee efficiency through less wasted time;
- 3 improved regulatory and statutory compliance; and
- 4 improved information retrieval and effective audit trails.

IM will also encourage collaborative working and ease information sharing, an overarching aim of MoPI code of practice.

Wiltshire Police recognises the importance of both its electronic and physical records management, and that its continual use of the current physical records process and systems presents a business risk. Wiltshire Police wanted a health check exercise to understand the level of risk in its IM functions, including compliance or otherwise with appropriate legislation in records management terms, and where there may be gaps in policy and practices.

Bramble.cc were able to assist Wiltshire Police to identify and plan subsequent work in the form of an IM strategy appraisal report detailing:

- 1 findings and observations from our health check investigations;
- 2 options for taking IM initiatives forward, comprising (for each option), potential scope, benefits, costs, timescales and the likely impact on the organization;
- 3 a recommendation on which option (or options) to pursue, with justification;
- 4 any assumptions, constraints and risks; and
- 5 suggested next steps.
